

Miss Ffoulke Becomes Bride Of M. Havenith

Washington society attended one of the most beautiful weddings of the season at noon today, when Miss Helen Seagrave Ffoulke became the wife of Emmanuel Havenith, the newly appointed Belgian minister to Persia, in the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Ffoulke, on Massachusetts avenue.

Monsignor O'Connell performed the ceremony, which was solemnized in the handsome tapestry gallery on the drawing-room floor. Quantities of Annunciation lilies and palms formed the decorations, the color scheme being entirely white and green. The bridal party stood under a canopy of the lilies, which formed an improvised altar.

An orchestra from the Marine Band, under the direction of Mr. Santelman, played the Lohengrin "Bridal Chorus" for the bridal procession, and a program of appropriate selections during the ceremony and reception which followed.

Francis Janssens, attache of the Belgian legation, Benson Foraker, Frederick Hudekoper, and Charles V. Ffoulke, Jr., were the ushers who seated the guests and led the bridal procession.

Miss Ffoulke entered the room alone, preceded by her maid of honor, Miss Louise Foraker. Miss Ffoulke wore the ideal bridal gown of heavy white satin, simply made, with a full court train, and the bodice completely covered with solid pearl embroidery below the yoke of point lace. Her bridal veil of point lace was the gift of her godmother, Miss Anna Stevens, in whose family it was an heirloom. A necklace of pearls, the gift of her father, and a bridal bouquet of gardenias completed her toilette.

Miss Foraker, as maid of honor, wore a beautiful costume of white chiffon, hand painted in pink roses around the lower part, and a Louis Quinze coat of cream colored lace, with a large, white hat trimmed with pink roses. Effective touches of doll blue velvet introduced on the bodice and coat and on the crown of the hat. Her flowers were Killarney roses.

Mr. Havenith met his bride at the altar with Baron Moncheur, who acted as his best man. Miss Ffoulke gave his daughter's hand in marriage. Immediately after the ceremony the bridal party stood in an alcove in the drawing room, banked high on either side with Annunciation lilies and received the guests. Mrs. Ffoulke, mother of the bride, wore a modish costume of white lace.

Following the reception the bridal party and a few additional guests were seated at the table in the dining room for the wedding breakfast, and in the elaborate buffet breakfast was served in the tapestry gallery. The tables also were adorned with lilies.

The guests at the bridal table were Monsignor O'Connell, Miss Foraker, Baron and Baroness Moncheur, Mr. and Mrs. Francis King Wright, Mr. and Mrs. Machin, Lieutenant Commander Archibald H. Davis, Miss Ffoulke, Miss Marie McKenna, now Mrs. Davenport Brown, of Boston, and Miss Daisy Colton, now Mrs. Archibald H. Davis, of Philadelphia.
